Exercices C basic

1. Write a function who prints the ASCII code in hex of the given 8 bits value.
2. Write a function who returns 1 if the given number is odd, else returns 0.
3. Write a function who returns the biggest value of a given array, the size of the array must be given too as parameter.
4. Write a function who prints all integer dividers of a given number.
5. Write a function who change the order of values of an array passed as argument (the size must be passed too). Example arr[0] <-> arr[8], …
6. Write a function who sort (smallest to biggest) the order of values of an array passed as argument, (the size must be passed too).
7. Write a function who returns the maximum difference between values of an array passed as argument, (the size must be passed too).